ABOUT:

This unique work for educational ensembles is perfect for an orchestra learning third and fourth positions for violin, viola and cello. Simple but engaging D major melodies will give the students the opportunity to focus on their position shifting in compelling and appropriate musical context.

FROM THE COMPOSER:

This is a versatile Grade .5 piece. It can be played by either:

1. Very Beginning orchestra Grade .5 (The Violin 2, Viola 2, Cello 2, and either Bass 2 or Low Bass). String teachers either teach 3rd position for bass or A string for bass in 1st semester. This piece has 2 beginning bass parts so an orchestra director who teaches either 3rd position or A string first can use this piece.
2. An orchestra who is first learning third/4th position for violin, viola, cello. There are very few easy pieces with shifting. I cannot think of one. The only one I know of is Night Shift, and it is way too difficult for many orchestras wanting to learn to shift.
3. Beginning orchestra playing the second part with advanced orchestra that is shifting playing the first part.
